Anyone who collects souvenir or convention badges almost surely has a piece made by the Schwaab Stamp and Seal Company of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. During the early 1900s, many benevolent and fraternal organizations were formed, and most issued badges for membership and conventions. During the same period, it was common practice to issue souvenir badges to celebrate fairs, expositions and carnivals.

The Schwaab story began in 1881, when Andrew Schwaab founded the Northwestern Stamp Works at 219 E. Wisconsin Ave. Branches later were opened in St. Paul and Chicago, and George and Theodore Schwaab joined their brother in the business. Added to the line — and still a large part of the production — were rubber hand stamps. The brothers later sold their St. Paul and Chicago branches and changed their name in 1887 to "Schwaab Stamp and Seal Company."

On Feb. 3, 1903, the Schwaab plant at 372 E. Water Street was the scene of a great tragedy when the Milwaukee Fire Department was called to handle a nitric acid leak. Although the building was filled with fumes, the firemen entered and carried a leaking carboy into an alley. There, company employees mistakenly threw sawdust on the acid instead of the chalk which would have neutralized it. Inhalation of the resultant fumes took the lives of the fire chief and three firemen, and eleven other firemen became ill from the effects.

In 1907 Schwaab bought the building on the southwest corner of North Water and East Michigan streets, where they still maintain a downtown outlet. During this period they made many of the items so eagerly sought by exonumists. Besides badges, they made trade tokens, commemorative and advertising medals, stickpins with small medals attached, masonic pennies, police and fire badges, dog licenses, lapel buttons, cattle tags, coat room checks, key checks, milk can plates, time checks and baggage checks. One of their early catalogs shows that they struck the Anna Eva Fay magician token (Kuethe MT129); a masonic penny from Marcellus, Michigan; a Modern Woodmen of America $2,000 brazen coin, and a 1901 medal from Waukesha (Wis.) commemorating the first sheet steel rolled in Wisconsin. At one time Schwaab was the world's largest manufacturer of watch fobs, and for a time also produced Wisconsin license plates. Before 1913, plate numbers were individually riveted on, but after that year they were embossed.

A tour through the Schwaab plant revealed an old hand press — also called a swing press — which can generate 400 tons of pressure. Originally used to strike tokens and medals, it now produces hubs for auto key dies. A check of my Milwaukee collection shows that Schwaab also made one variety of the common Cascarets medal (C. of P. #CPA5) and one variety of the Excelsior Shoe Company medal, both of which have "Schwaab Milwaukee" in exergue.

Andrew Schwaab continued in the business until his death on April 19, 1911, at the age of 57. The business was passed on to his children, and two of his grandchildren, George and Richard Mayer, now sit on the board of directors.

The Schwaab company also had a wholly owned subsidiary, Louis R. Behling Engraving Co. of 2233 N. 32 Street. This firm, founded about 1921 by a former Schwaab employee, was purchased from his estate in the early 1950s. In 1961 Schwaab built a new plant at 11415 W. Burleigh Street in Wauwatosa (Wis.), which houses offices and factory operations. In the same year the Behling company also moved to the building, and shortly thereafter was dissolved.

Starting out with rubber stamps, Schwaab branched out into making rubber printing plates, metal stencils, notary and corporate seals, brass checks, number plates and stencils. Their newest product is the Perma Stamp, a rubber stamp requiring no pad, which has helped make them the largest general marking device company in Wisconsin.

Schwaab stopped producing tokens, medals and badges in the 1950s when the demand dropped, but still makes them on request. For about the last 17 years they have made all the medals for the Milwaukee Numismatic Society when that organization hosted the Numismatists of Wisconsin and the Central States shows.

Gone forever, now, are the turn-of-the-century engravers who did all of their work by hand, but the pieces they painstakingly produced will live on as a tribute to their dedication, skills and fine craftsmanship.

Schwaab now is busy getting ready to celebrate its 100th birthday, and will, of course, strike a medal to commemorate the centennial.

(Special thanks go to Schwaab Vice-President Daniel Nettesheim for some of the historical information in this article.)

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE...

In mid-October I attended the I-K-O token and medal show held at Englewood, Ohio. I enjoyed the show, meeting a number of collectors and dealers that I might not otherwise see. At the same time I examined a number of tokens and medals that were new to me, even purchasing a few. This is always possible at any token and medal show that has 15 or more dealers as this one did. The variety of tokens and medals is such that one practically always has the pleasure of learning about pieces that one did not know existed. Taken together, they make these shows very worthwhile.

But this show had one thing in common with other regional token and medal shows I've attended — a lack of attendance. Although several collectors like myself came from other states, there were many collectors from the Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio area who did not attend. As you possibly know, we've been kicking around the idea of having a separate TAMS convention each year instead of holding it in conjunction with the ANA where we must wedge our meetings in whatever time slots are available (and always in conflict with some other activity that some members also wish to attend).

Along with a number of others, I've been strongly interested in separate conventions, but until more collectors indicate their interest by attending regional token and medal shows, I do not think a national convention is a viable possibility. In short, until regional token and medal shows start attracting a couple hundred collectors so that a national show can reasonably expect to attract four hundred or more, the prospects of a separate convention are bleak due to the costs which cannot be reduced below a certain level regardless of how many attend. Hint: Attend your next local token and medal show — if interest warrants it, national conventions should eventually follow.

Due to the vacancy caused by the untimely death of Max Schwartz, our First Vice President, the TAMS Board has voted to move Neil Harris up from Second to First Vice President; Hal Dunn, who has served long and faithfully as a Governor, takes Neil's place as Second Vice President. To fill the spot vacated by Hal, Ray Colbert has been named Governor. Ray received the next highest vote of those who failed to attain office in the 1978 election. These are interim changes which will enable the Board to function properly until the next election is held in 1980.

By the way, the previews that I've read about the 1980s sound like this may be a decade of belt-tightening. If correct, it may also be a decade when tokens and medals come of age. As you know, many tokens were issued under conditions of real need, and among the most interesting medals are those that commemorate great changes or difficult times and events. Be that as it may, I trust that each member, in expecting the worst, may find the 1980s to be among the best years of your life.

UNIDENTIFIED OBJECT

Robert Grossman has an unidentified piece that he would like information on. The piece is 38mm in diameter, 1.5mm thick and the composition is of a dull grey, base metal. The inscription is punched in. Members who can shed light on this medal (?) should write, Grossman at Suite 704, 120 West Madison St., Chicago, IL 60602

New Jersey Food Stamp Tokens

by Gary Patterson

Part 1

Effective January 1, 1979 the United States Department of Argriculture — Food and Nutrition Service issued new regulations which brought an end to the use of Food Stamp Tokens.

The major regulation change affecting these tokens stated: "Food stamp customers will be entitled to receive cash change up to 99 cents from food stamp sales. Stores will no longer use due bills, credit slips or tokens in making change for food stamps. Unendorsed $1 food stamps will be returned when the change due is more than 99 cents. Due bills, credit slips and tokens given out before January 1, 1979 must be honored by the store that issued them."

A complete set of tokens consists of five pieces. The most common denominations and colors were: 1¢ Black, 5¢ Green, 10¢ Blue, 25¢ Red and 50¢ Pink. Size is 29mm. Lettering was usually white. Exceptions to this will be noted in the listing.

Because of the token cost and size of the store in purchasing these tokens, many stores used "Short Sets". These sets usually consisted of three denominations: 1¢, 5¢ or 10¢ and the 25¢ piece.

To the right of each denomination in the following listing are brackets which are used to check-off each token that you have in your collection. When a city is listed in parenthesis, it has been attributed as such but does not appear on the token. All known major varieties are noted.

Token bearing the name of W. Bonitz is rare, with only two known. The piece probably was used in the restaurant or store operated in conjunction with the hotel.

Bonitz of Goldsboro

by Jerry R. Roughton, TAMS 3264

John Henry William Bonitz was born Nov. 3, 1839, in Zellerfeld, Hannover, Germany, and is thought to have arrived in the United States at Baltimore, Md., probably in the mid-1850s. (1) Early accounts of his life in this country are either sketchy or non-existent, but the following brief remarks explain his decision to move to the South a few years later:

"My fater, John Henry William, came to Goldsboro (N.C.) in 1859, after he had seen the murder of Barton Key by Gerald Sickles. Father at the time was a page under Buchanan (evidently refers to President James Buchanan — ED.) and was advised to leave Washington (D.C.)" (2)

On moving to Goldsboro in 1859, William established himself in the town by buying the store of a Mr. Hernglaus and operating it as a retail general merchandise emporium. In April, 1861, he was joined by his brother, Julius Augustus Bonitz, who soon opened a printing and newspaper business. William joined his brother in the printing trade, (3) and from their association there came some interesting philatelical material. The Bonitz brothers' printing business extended to the manufacture and printing of Confederate patriotic covers (envelopes) and stationery. The "envelope factory," as it became known, began in 1862 with the printing of a variety of covers bearing the imprint: "Manufactured by W. & J. Bonitz, Goldsboro, N.C." It was a lucrative business for the brothers, according to reports. (4)

During the War Between the States, it is known that William was deferred from active military service because of a shrunken leg, but he was to volunteer and serve in the Battle of Bentonville, (5) called "the bloodiest battle ever fought on North Carolina soil" (March 19-20, 1865). (6)

The following excerpts, written by William Bonitz, describe the infamous Reconstruction period when his store was allowed to operate during the occupation by Union troops in Goldsboro:

"I opened my store the day the army came and he (U.S. Colonel Huffy, then acting provost marshal for Goldsboro) furnished me some guards as clerks; as he also did for Julious A. Bonitz, who opened his store in the Goddard building. After losing all of his tobacco (Julius may have been a tobacco broker and lost his warehouse during the war) Julius started with less than $200.00. Julius and myself did good business as long as Colonel Huffy was provost marshal in Goldsboro. Law and order was carried out by him, but as soon as he was relieved by Captain _____, (left blank in the account) things took a different turn." (7)

The account continues with an incident indicative of the character and nature of the times:

"A Pennsylvania soldier named Myers went to Julius's store to get a Bible to read. Julius brought him over to my store and we gave him one. He informed us that he had some diamond war and finger rings which he wanted to sell, and he showed them to us. He called our attention to the horrible fact that the ear tips were on the earrings where he had bit them off the ears of a lady in Georgia. It made my heart ache and I ordered him out of the store." (8)

Following the war, Julius returned to the newspaper trade, of which William wrote later: ". . . Julius A. Bonitz found himself the owner of a printing office, but without money and without newspaper experience." But Julius was to become a remarkable newspaper man, starting with his first newspaper, Rough Notes, published in April, 1867, eventually to publish the Messenger, an important sheet of the period. He later moved the newspaper to Wilmington, N.C., in May, 1887. (9)

Little is known of the type of business William followed in the postwar period, or whether he continued his store for any length of time. But it is known that early in the 1870s he built the Bonitz Hotel and was its proprietor until it burned in 1872. It is believed he left the hotel business for a time to engage in farming, but an 1876 business directory has him listed as operating a restaurant in Goldsboro. It is, however, a fact that he returned to the hotel business in Goldsboro in 1882 with the construction of a hotel called The Arlington. (10) (An 1883-84 business directory lists under "hotel" the Bonitz House.)

As described in a newspaper account, the Arlington was a handsome brick building with 50 to 75 rooms and covering the whole corner. The ground floor was given over to various mercantile establishments, and at one time included the Goldsboro post office. For many years the hotel was headquarters for salesmen who traveled the eastern Carolinas. (11)

Sometime before 1900, William left Goldsboro and moved to Wilmington, N.C., where he undertook to operate a second Bonitz Hotel. He died there Oct. 27, 1913, at the age of 74, after gaining high regard in the community. (12)

This brief biographical sketch serves as the basis for information on the subject and the token that bears his name and location of business: W. BONITZ / GOLDSBORO, N.C. the piece is a worthy rarity, with only two known, both in the "5" denomination, struck in brass and measuring 20mm. The die work appears to be that of F.D. Koehler of Baltimore, a fact assumed from Duffield's description of Koehler's work: "For the reverse a wreath, with a star at the top, enclosing the figure representing the value. These were struck mainly between 1870 and 1885." (15) I admit to guesswork, but I believe it is most probable that the tokens were used in connection with the hotel business, perhaps in the restaurant or store located in the hotel, sometime during the 1870-1880 period.

(I wish to acknowledge the help of John H. Bonitz, Greensboro, N.C., in providing me with much of the biographical material and permitting me to write this sketch. Also, I thank philatelist-author A. Earl Weatherly, Greensboro, for permitting use of photographs of the Bonitz covers.)

Confederate patriotic cover is imprinted "Man'td by W. & J. Bonitz, Goldsboro, N.C." Envelopes were handmade and printed by William and Julius bonitz beginning in 1862. Cannon, ten-star flag and patriotic verse are typical of the other varieties produced. (Courtesy Jane Moore, Greensboro Historical Museum)

SPECIAL NOTES

I WILL ATTEMPT TO ABSORB POSTAGE COSTS FOR SUCCESSFUL BIDDERS WINNING ONE OR TWO TOKENS OF LOW VALUE. I HAVE DUPLICATES OF A FEW OF THE LOTS AND WILL AWARD THOSE TO THE SECOND HIGHEST BIOOER.

THE DILEMMA OF LOW 54 . . . .

THE KNEELING SLAVE TOKEN

Following the researches of Lyman H. Low (1844-1924) on the Hard Times Tokens and the subsequent publication of his efforts in 1886, there has been a paucity of additional information on this early, attractive, readily available and historically important series. Perhaps none of these is more widely known than the 1838 anti-slavery token, although no cogent reason for its issue has been suggested in the numismatic literature, nor is there a description of its varieties, if such in fact exist. It is hoped that some earlier observations, coupled with a body of hard metrological data, may help to relieve some of this uncertainty.

The possibility that Low 54 was issued to influence the Congressional elections of 1838 was considered improbable by Lindesmith, who was led to believe that it may have appeared at the instigation of one of the American anti-slavery societies to commemorate the abolition of slavery in much of the British West Indies in that year. It was suggested by Leonard and Keeler that the anti-slavery movement may simply have decided to add their propaganda effort in token form at this time, the year being inconsequential, and/or that the token may have had some relationship to the underground railroad. Bushnell (1858) did not consider the token primarily political, in the sense of being campaign or election material.

In an extended article on presidential campaign medals which appeared in Scribner's Magazine in 1888, Gustav Kobbe, a knowledgeable early investigator, wrote colorfully of a "medium-sized bronze piece, dated 1838, which in the light of subsequent events has a deep significance. It evidently commemorates the organizing of the Liberty Party. On the obverse is a female slave kneeling and holding up her shackled arms, her hands clasped beseechingly.

by Ernest Beerstecher

'Am I not a woman and a sister?' is her pathetic appeal. This design and inscription seem to have been graven in bitter mockery of the reverse of the medal, upon which we read: 'United States of America' and 'Liberty'. A glance at this medal tells us that it differs as thoroughly from the other political medals so far examined as the purpose and methods of the anti-slavery agitators differed from those of the other political parties of those days. There is no clap-trap appeal to excited partisanship — nothing to bring an assemblage to its feet or to awaken a responsive cheer. The tears of the shackled woman fall rather upon the fruitful soil of humanity from which spring up pity and a deep sense of a wrong to be righted.

The pathos, the cruelty of slavery, and its mockery of the principles upon which our government is founded stand out in bold relief from this little circle of metal. The medallist seems to have worked with the grim earnestness of the leaders of the movement. The agitation was not a mere political flash-in-the-pan. With the evidence this medal affords of the lofty spirit in which the anti-slavery movement was inaugurated, can we wonder that, although two great parties never dared face the question, it grew in importance until it overshadowed every other issue and had to be settled by an appeal from speech and parchment to blood and iron?"

To this it might be added that, considering the fine quality of the engravers art, it is unthinkable that the backward letter N in UNITED STATES on the reverse could have been an oversight. It was an inescapable cynicism on the national unity.

It has been shown in detail by the Fulds that the basic obverse design of the kneeling slave and the legend originated in the official seal of the British Society for the Abolition of the Slave Trade, which was organized in 1787, that Josiah Wedgewood, an ardent abolitionist, had his pottery firm manufacture large numbers of medallions in various sizes with this design, and that about 1797 a large number of British farthing and half-penny size copper tokens bearing a male slave of this design appeared in circulation in England. The design achieved great international appeal and was reproduced in an 1835 engraving by the black American artist, Patrick Reason. The dies for Low 54 undoubtedly were cut by Edward Hulseman, who was responsible for many of the other Hard Times Tokens of this period (Lindesmith). The Fulds felt that it was possible that the tokens were struck by the Scoville Manufacturing Co. of Waterbury, Conn., although many — if not all — of Hulseman's works were struck by Robinson, Jones & Co. of Attleborough, Mass.

In 1957 the Fulds described a variety of Low 54 ("Low 54a"), differing in that the obverse design bore a male slave in a similar posture, with the legend AM I NOT A MAN AND A BROTHER? It was unknown prior to 1910, and although the reverse die letter stamps are identical (except that the N is correct), the work is slightly cruder and the denticles of the border are different. Only two specimens were known to them at that time, both in worn condition, and one would suspect that these were alternative die trial pieces that had inadvertently gotten into circulation, rather than a true variety.

Bushnell (1858) described the slave token as being Size 8 (which corresponds to 27mm.), saying that he had "gathered together all (of the U.S. tokens) that are known" to him. Low described them as being of 27 and 28mm. in diameter. Voorhis (1913) stated that there were two sizes of planchets, and that the smaller size shows a slight rise on the obverse rim below the letter R of SISTER, and below the left wreath ribbon of the reverse. Lindesmith believed the small variety was struck last, since three specimens available to him showed a die crack (sic) running from A of AMERICA through the wreath to a point above T of LIBERTY, and since the specimens were all EF and AU, there was a suggestion that they may have been struck for collectors. It also appeared to him that the larger variety in choice condition was quite rare. It is a conclusion of this present report that the defect observed by Lindesmith is common to both sizes of tokens, and a statistical certainty that the larger planchet type is far the commoner in any condition.

A curious characteristic of Low 54 in all grades — observable at a glance, yet not apparent in the literature — is the fact that the reverse 1838 of this token is quite weak (fades) to the right side, so that the last 8 and sometimes the 3 are bearly legible. The obverse and reverse axes are the same, although about half the specimens examined are off about 30° either to the right or left.

Although it is not normally observed, a comparative study of the large number of specimens in this study shows that, when the condition of the token is VG or less by the criteria devised for this investigation, the wear extends noticeably on the rim at the left side of the obverse and the underlying right side of the reverse. This fact, couples with the fact that the reverse date is not in as high a relief as its surrounding design, makes it almost certain that the fading-date phenomenon is due to the dies not being evenly struck. It occasionally happens, however, that a specimen appears in which all four digits of the date are uniformly and evenly struck. The even-date and the fading-date varieties are absolutely distinct; there appear to be no transitional varieties and the difference is instantly discernable. This observation appears to provide valuable evidence regarding the slavery token.

MATERIALS AND METHODS

A sample of 73 specimens of Low 54 was obtained over a three year period (1975-1977) from American dealers and auctions, without regard to condition (except for two expensive reputedly BU specimens which were excluded). It is felt that this should represent a fairly unprejudiced sample of this token as it exists in the numismatic market today. The token is regarded as a common member (rarity 1) of the Hard Times series, and prices ranged from $4 to $30. Withdrawal from the market into this pool did not appreciably increase the price or slow the acquisition, and it might be estimated that somewhere around 1000 copies of the token still exist of the 25,000 to 50,000 mintage.

Of these, four were pierced (6, 6, 11, 11 o'clock), all with a slight projecting edge, as if done neatly with a hammer and awl, rather than drilled. Casual observation suggests that this figure of about 5 per cent is close to that seen in a number of other members of the Hard Times series. Twelve of the tokens showed some slight corrosion. Three were somewhat mutilated, but without any apparent political motivation, and one of these was counterstruck with a CS CR. Only two showed any obvious flan defect, and these were slight. One of the mutilated coins showed sufficient metal loss to be excluded from the metrological data reported.

When the specimens were laid out in order of increasing wear, it became possible to devise a grading system to which numerical values could be assigned for analytical purposes. Obverses proved to be more sensitive than reverses for this purpose, so that the system employed (Table 1) utilizes obverse criteria almost entirely. Table II shows the distribution of specimens with both fading- and even-dates, according to wear. The even-date variety is about ten times rarer than the fading-date type, and the "wear distribution" is about the same for both, suggesting that both were in circulation for somewhat similar periods of time. One of the seven even-date specimens was pierced at the top.

The tokens were weighed on an analytical balance to the nearest milligram, and diameters and thicknesses were measured with a micrometer caliper to the nearest tenth millimeter.

RESULTS

Metrological data on Low 54 are summarized in Table III. The most significant fact that emerges from this is that the even-date type was minted on a significantly smaller planchet than the fading-date type, the diameters of all seven specimens falling well below the smallest of the fading-date type. A scatter diagram of diameters fails to suggest anything other than this distribution.

Data fails to substantiate a significant difference between weights of the two types. When a scatter diagram of the weights is prepared, however, a bimodal distribution of the weights of the larger fading-date planchets may be observed, with 27 tokens weighing more than 10.3 gm. and 38 weighing less; modes for these peaks are at 10.5 gm. and 10.1 gm., respectively. The weights of all the even-date tokens fall well below the heavier of these two fading-date weight groups. Evaluating these two weight groups as to relative amounts of wear in the tokens they represent shows that they are identical. Further study reveals, however, that 89 per cent of the heavier group have thicknesses of 2.1 mm. or more, while 63 per cent of the lighter group have thicknesses of 2.0 or less. The bimodality of the planchet weights of the fading-date group is thus to a considerable extent a reflection of the token thickness, although a distribution curve of the thicknesses shows only a single peak.

Wear, corrosion, sample size and the fact that the thickness is only measured to within 5 per cent all combine to make further comparisons doubtful. The two fading-date AU tokens do weigh more than the single AU even-date specimen, and 5 of 7 of the about EF weigh more than the single even-date token in this grade, but with increased wear the weight relationship disappears.

DISCUSSION

The foregoing considerations show clearly that at least two distinct varieties exist of Low 54. This one, with a clear and even reverse date, was minted on a smaller (27 mm.) planchet and in a quantity of only a few thousand. The other, with an uneven reverse date, was minted on a larger (28 mm.) planchet and in about tenfold the quantity of the smaller. The fact that the larger group was minted on planchets of two thicknesses (albeit differing only slightly), which resulted in the tokens falling into two weight groups, does not seem of great significance. Both of the major varieties were minted from the same dies, both were in circulation for some time, and both were occasionally pierced for wearing.

Any solution to the dilemma of when each variety was minted and under what circumstances must, for the present, remain conjectural. Bushnell's large token collection in 1858 appeared to contain only the smaller variety. It does not seem probable that the competent and respectable minting establishments at Attleborough or Westbury would have produced an order of tens of thousands of manifestly defective tokens — or indeed that the thrifty and meticulous New England abolitionists would have accepted such. Or that their traditional frugality, coupled with the reasonable need for launching the newborn Liberty Party in 1838, would have called for more than a few thousand tokens. By 1840 their presidential candidate, James G. Birney, was only able to poll some 7,000 votes, and in 1848 they consolidated forces with other political factions to become the Free Soil Party. Six years later most of the abolitionists were Republicans, and by 1860 in power with Abraham Lincoln.

Could the dies have been restruck in quantity by cheap and negligent presswork to help the Liberty Party's Birney get his 62,000 votes in 1844? Or were they lost and fallen into the hands of commercial interests that sloppily struck them for easy sale as mementos of the political climate immediately preceding the Civil War? The answers to these questions lie buried somewhere in the vast body of the abolition literature or the uncountable pages of the contemporary newspapers.

(I am indebted in this study for considerable encouragement and assistance from H. Joseph Levine and from my brother, Dr. Robert E. Beerstecher.)

TOKEN OF DEATH

Occasionally a token will remind us of the duties involved in being a worthy ward of our ancestors. The particular piece to be considered is a cemetery token from Calvary Cemetery in Chicago.

by Bill Pettit

First let's get acquainted with the cemetery as described in a paragraph from a book printed during the Columbian Exposition to introduce tourists with the sights of Chicago and environs.

CALVARY CEMETERY

The principal Roman Catholic burying ground of the city, situated ten miles north of the City Hall on the Milwaukee division of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway. It lies on the Sheridan Road, and the carriage drive which reaches it over this thoroughfare, together with the Lake Shore Drive and Lincoln Park, is charming. The cemetery is adorned by natural and ornamental shade trees, well kept flower-plats and smooth winding drives and walks. There have been over 30,000 interments in Calvary Cemetery since its consecration in 1861.

The token is brass and 25mm in diameter. On the obverse the legend is:"CALVARY CEMETERY" around the outer border; "DEPOSIT/15/CENTS" in the center.

On the reverse is the 6-line inscription "DEPOSIT/WILL BE/REFUNDED/UPON RETURN /OF BASKET/OR TROWEL"

The purpose of the token was receipt for a 15¢ deposit on a basket or trowel to help with putting flowers or plants on family gravesites. When the token was returned the 15¢ was refunded.

This token obviously comes from a transition period between the time the cemetery provided these services gratis and the present when these services are not provided by the cemetery at all.

Token reminders play an important part in our knowing about and "understanding" the past.

WANTED!

COLORADO MINING TOWN TOKENS AND MEDALS PRE-1920

For my personal collection I desire tokens and related items from Colorado towns, particularly Cripple Creek, Victor, and other towns in the Cripple Creek District. Also I am desirous of obtaining Lesher dollars. (At the moment I have just two different varieties, so I can use just about anything you might have to offer!)

I am not looking for bargains but will pay "the going rate" for any pieces you wish to sell. At this point my collection is in its beginning stages. Or, if you have a collection of Colorado tokens and are thinking of selling, why not give me a chance at it? "The time to sell is when you have a buyer," it is said — and right now, as I only have a few pieces, I represent the chance for you to sell at the retail price.

Other interests: I appreciate very much the correspondence I have received from several hundred TAMS members over the years who have offered me "good for one tune" and other nickel-size tokens of the early 20th century. I am still in the market for these and welcome any that you may offer. Also I collect pre-1920 USA tokens relating to theaters, opera houses, vaudeville houses, and circuses. Still another interest is tokens relating to Moxie, a soft drink used in New England during the early part of the present century.

Send on approval what you have for a prompt response. Or, if you prefer, send rubbings or a quotation. Either way, I look forward to hearing from you. Thanks for your interest.

CAPTAIN JOHN PAUL JONES HONORED

Captain John Paul Jones, American Revolutionary War hero and "Father of the American Navy" is to be honored this year on the U.S. Capitol Historical Society's Congressionally authorized commemorative medal. The story that enshrines Jones as a Bunyonesque figure in American folklore is his victory on the sinking BONHOMME RICHARD over the British frigate SERAPIS and his defiant response to the British demand that he strike his colors "I have not yet begun to fight" which quickly entered the American lexicon.

This dramatic event is now memorialized in the second of a series of Congressionally authorized medals depicting personalities and events between the Declaration of Independence in 1776 and the inauguration of our new government under the U.S. Constitution in 1789.

The 1979 medal is the creation of award winning sculptor Edward R. Grove. Jone's portrait on the medal's obverse is based on both the Houdon bust at the U.S. Naval Academy, and a 1779 drawing from life by T. Moreau. The nautical scene on the reverse is based on contemporary paintings and records portraying the BONHOMME RICHARD and the SERAPTS lashed bow to stern.

The Society's John Paul Jones commemorative will be issued in limited editions in gold, silver and bronze, and priced as follows:

1000 1 5/16" diameter 24 carat gold medals (full one ounce gold) @ $550.00; Only 3000 3" diameter, .999 fine silver medals (9.25 ounce silver @ $175.00; Only 5000 3" diameter bronze medals @ $25. To satisfy the varied needs of collectors, a 1½" diameter .999 fine silver medal(.90 ounce silver) @ $32.50 and a 1½" diameter bronze medal @ $7.50, (open editions) will be issued. No medals will be minted after December 31, 1979.

Individuals desiring to purchase the 1979 medal, or a complete set of the medals may do so by sending a check or money order to the U.S. Capitol Historical Society, Dept. CMP, 200 Maryland Avenue, N.E., Washington, D.C. 20002.

Unique Coin Lifts LD Revenues

TAMS member John Mutch sent in the following article which appeared in Telephone Engineer and Management.

When a province-wide promotion began in November, Alberta Government Telephones became the first telephone company in North America to sell gift coins as an incentive for more business.

The objective of the sales promotion is to raise toll revenue by stimulating long distance calling, using gifts to compete for the consumer's discretionary dollar.

Initially 10,000 coins specially designed and minted for AGT will be available at all phone Centres and AGT Business Offices. The golden-colored coins, about the size of a half-dollar, sells for $5 and is appropriately called A Conversation Piece.

Each coin is valid for $5 worth of long distance calls and customers who receive Conversation Pieces as gifts can cash them in when paying their AGT bills.

Results of a market research and feasibility study conducted by Joe Tetreau, product manager—toll promotion in Business Communications, clearly indicate public interest in the novel gift coin idea proposed by Herb Hibbs, sectional supervisor—message toll rates, and Lloyd Benbow, statistical supervisor message toll, in Corporate Development.

To determine the success of coin sales, a tracking system will be monitored by Commercial Results.

Staff in the Commercial Department involved in selling and cashing in Conversation Pieces will be participating in special training courses developed by Commercial Methods Assistant, Doug Anderson, who is responsible for co-ordinating the promotion. "Banks will not accept AGT coins because they don't have the special procedures needed to handle the item,' he repeated. However, Kent Hansen and Frances Wu in the Accounting Department, and Brian Topechka in Treasury, have devised new accounting procedures required to handle the coins internally.

The gift telephone coins will only be sold in Alberta. Darline Iftody, Alberta Government Telephone "Calls."

AN EXPLANATION

Numerous letters were received from members stating that they hadn't received their October issue of the Journal. Apologies are in order, but so is an explanation.

Due to the complex nature of the membership roster we were late in delivering film to the printers. This plus the fact that the printers experienced their share of problems resulted in a late issue.

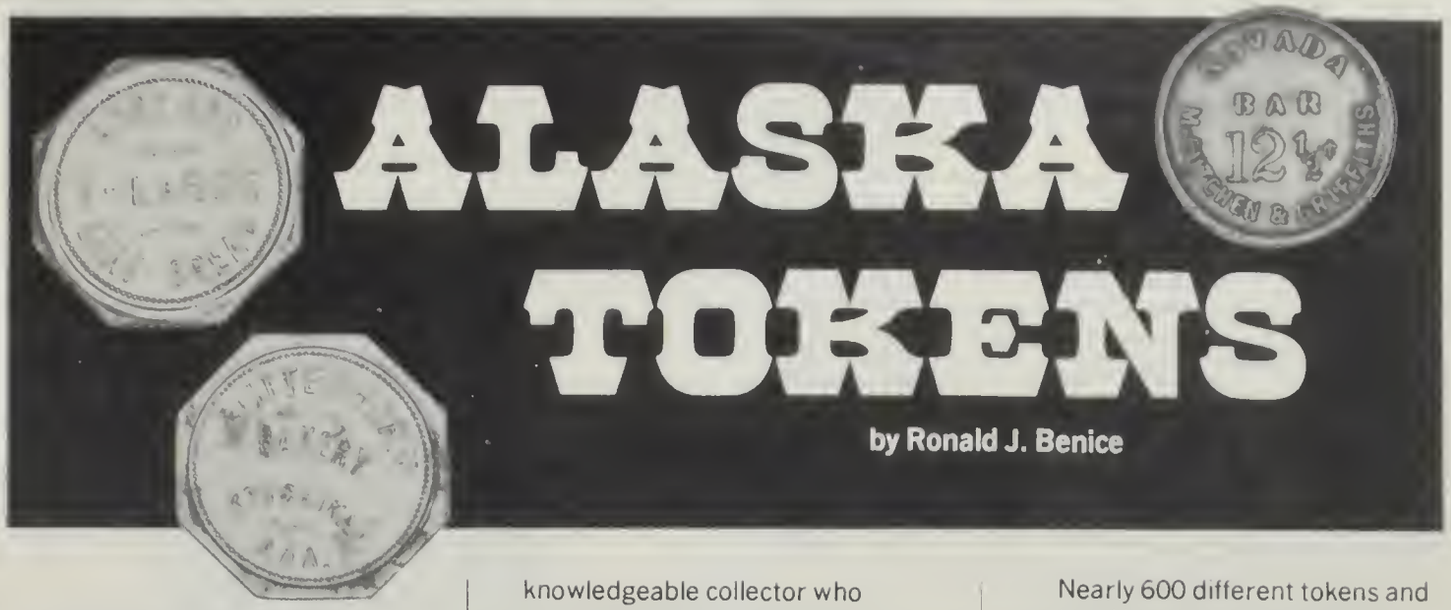
AVAILABLE FOR IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT



The same cry that lured gold seekers to the frigid climes of Alaska nearly a century ago still holds true for the exonumia collector of today.

Ronald J. Benice's Alaska token book is an exonumists guide to the "gold bearing" areas of the region." The listing primarily focuses on the monetary issues before Alaska's admittance to statehood in 1959. Included are all known metallic issues plus paper chits, transportation tokens, military and other related items such as mirror cards. To make the collectors trip thru pages even more interesting and educational, Ron has incorporated photographs of business places along with illustrations of their advertisements and historical background.

Listings are in alphabetical sequence by towns and then by merchants with a catalog number being assigned to each piece.

". . . a token is worth what a knowledgeable collector who wants to buy would pay a knowledgeable seller who wants to sell . . ." best describes the valuations the author has placed on the pieces. Prices are based on numerous auction records, fixed pricelists and private transactions, and are as accurate as possible.

Nearly 600 different tokens and related items are illustrated on 208 pages of quality 6x9 paper.

Alaska tokens is hardbound with gold stamping on the cover and spine, and should be a welcomed addition to every collector's library.

Because we have only been in our home a couple of days and are not "settled" yet, I will not be listing any LIBRARY ADDITIONS this issue. Be sure and watch for an extended listing next issue.

I certainly appreciate the patience of all the TAMS members during our time of transition and hope that it hasn't caused any inconvenience.

MEDALLIC ART STRIKES OFFICIAL OLYMPIC 1980 CALENDAR MEDAL

The Winter Olympic Games, to be held in New York's Lake Placid next February, dominates the theme of the 1980 annual calendar medal struck by Medallic Art Company, Danbury.

Sixth in a series of annual medals bearing the year's calendar, it is the fifth such medal prepared by New Jersey sculptor Marcel Jovine, who chose the theme of the Winter Olympics as the most notable event foreseen for the ensuing year.

As the official Olympic calendar medal, it shows an obverse montage design of eight panels, each panel representing one of the nine events of the Winter Olympics, including Alpine and Nordic skiing, ski jump, biathlon, figure skating, speed skating, bobsled and ice hockey. Only the luge was omitted from the medallic design but was symbolized by the bobsled.

The reverse, the side bearing the 1980 calendar, has two torches, of the same design used to open and close the Games, one on each side; and below, crossed hockey sticks and ice skating blades.

It is estimated that 600,000 spectators will view the Winter Games at Lake Placid. Live television coverage will beam the events to millions around the globe. Over 1,800 athletes and their coaches will represent their countries in, perhaps, the high-point of their lives.

The excitement of the Games was captured by the sculptor in his medallic design. "Each of the panels is a composition of action," said artist Jovine. "I sought the speed of the competition and the beauty of the dance. I wanted the best lines to show at the moment of stress during athletic competition."

The 3-inch medal was struck in fine silver and bronze. The silver edition was limited to 500 medals and sold out at the original price of $195. The bronze edition will be limited to a quantity of 25,000 in antique finish at $25; and 5,000 in an edition of 24-karat goldplate on bronze at $32.50.

Collectors can order the medal by including $1 for postage and handling in addition to the previous mentioned cost to Medallic Art Company, Box 1770, Danbury, CT 06810. Payment may be made by American Express, Visa, Diners Club or Master Charge. Orders by credit card may also be placed by toll-free phone call, to 800-243-9906. Medals are available for immediate delivery.

This fantastic collection could have been yours for PRESIDENTIAL has auctioned each and every one of these tokens in the course of its 26 token and medal auctions!

PRESIDENTIAL is now mailing its 27th mail bid sale and invites your participation. This sale will contain extensive listings of Civil War Tokens (over 750 lots), 19th Century Merchant Tokens (over 250 lots) and Hard Times Tokens (over 125 different). There is also a large selection of Washingtonia and So-called Dollars. We will also feature a small, but choice, collection of Canadian tokens which includes several original silver jetons. Of course, we will also have our usual fine selection of U.S. and foreign medals. Other choice morsels include a small group of scarce sutler tokens, an unlisted Arizona saloon token and a nice selection of scarce California trade and saloon checks.

PRESIDENTIAL'S auctions are sent by subscription only. We research extensively, describe in detail and grade conservatively. Most importantly, we handle more of the rare "classic" tokens and medals than anyone in the business. The $44,000 realized from our last 500 lot floor sale in Philadelphia confirms this. We feel our auctions are worth paying for! Try a single sale for $1.00 or subscribe to our next four sales with prices realized for $3.00. We're sure you won't be disappointed.
